Founded on December 1st, 1958, the Antarctic Science Nation was established by a political bloc of radical Geniuses who, for their aid to the Allies in WWII, made the claim to found their own country upon the continent of Antarctica. The architecture seen on the Antarctic Peninsula can only be described as 'Jetsons' (or Google Architecture) – but most of the buildings seem to be devoted to growing vast amounts of grains hydroponically and meat via advanced cloning and vat-growing methods for export. The ASN does a brisk business in tourism, selling vast amounts of weird but fun high-tech souvenirs but for the most part, declining to share their Genius technologies to the world, though they can and do sell selected rare reactants and devices (such as so-called 'Zero-Point Batteries' for high prices, keeping their economy firmly in the black. They have bartered with the UN and the Committee for Information and Defense on superhuman Capability Individuals and maintain their extremely high-tech prison that has been named 'The Other End of Nowhere' [Blank star on map]. Their political leader is called the 'Ascendant'; theorized to be a powerful Genius, with his true level of intelligence estimated to be very high.
